Critical Watch Chief Strategy Officer, TippingPoint President Featured Speakers at Lone Star Information Security Forum
David Harris & Alan Kessler to educate participants on making security operational

June 17, 2009 – (Dallas, Texas) – Critical Watch Chief Strategy Officer David Harris and TippingPoint President Alan Kessler are scheduled to speak at the Lone Star Information Security Forum in Dallas, Texas on June 24. They will present strategies for reducing the total cost of ownership for network security solutions in challenging economic times. The successful integration of FusionVM Security Risk and Compliance Manager from Critical Watch and the TippingPoint® Intrusion Prevention System (IPS) illustrates the effectiveness of a holistic combination of IPS and Vulnerability Management resulting in sustained compliance and reduced operational costs. Attendees will learn the benefits of this integration, the process for implementing it in their unique environment and how it fits into the future of security and compliance management.

“Alan and I are looking forward to providing attendees with real-world solutions designed to improve enterprises’ risk posture and carry them into the next phase of operationalizing security,” said Harris. “The Lone Star Information Security Forum is a great venue for helping attendees stay up to date with emerging technologies and gain industry insights from the experiences of their peers.”

The Lone Star Information Security Forum takes place June 24 – 25 at the Cityplace Conference Center in Dallas, Texas. Visit the Critical Watch Web site for more information.
